New Vitiligo Study - Now Enrolling

Millions of people are affected by vitiligo, a condition that causes white patches of skin to appear on the face and body. Vitiligo can affect people of any race, age, or gender. Vitiligo is believed to be an autoimmune condition, which means the immune system mistakenly attacks the pigment cells in the skin. Currently, there is no cure for vitiligo, but researchers are studying new options that may be able to help.

Right now, dermatologists at select centers in the U.S. and Canada are accepting participants for a new clinical research study. The study is for an investigational topical cream for vitiligo, used in conjunction with phototherapy. If you are 18 years of age or older and have vitiligo, you may qualify to participate.

If you join, you will receive all study-related care and medication at no cost from a local doctor, and will also be compensated for your time and travel to attend study visits.
